(Explanation of combined financial statement
data for Q1/2026)

Hanoi, April 29, 2026

Dear : - State Securities Commission

- Hanoi Stock Exchange

In accordance with Article 14 – Chapter III – Circular 96/2020/TT-BTC issued on November 16, 2020 by the Ministry of Finance on guiding the disclosure of information on the Securities Market, Vietnam Electronics and Informatics Corporation (Viettronics), ticker symbol VEC, traded on the UPCOM exchange, has prepared its combined financial report for the first quarter of 2026 and submitted it to the relevant authorities. Viettronics now explains the fluctuations in the indicators as required by law as follows:

1. Regarding profit fluctuation figures:

According to the combined financial report for Q1/2026, the net profit after tax (NPAT) figure is projected to increase by more than 10% compared to the same period in 2025:

- For Q1/2026: Net profit after tax will increase by VND 7,500 million compared to Q1/2025, corresponding to an increase of over 10%.
- For the cumulative figures up to March 31, 2026: Business results will shift from a loss to a profit. Specifically, cumulative net profit after tax up to March 31, 2026 will increase by VND 7,500 million compared to the same period in 2025 (Cumulative net profit after tax up to March 31, 2025: loss of VND 3,025 million).

2. Causes of fluctuations:

The aforementioned profit difference mainly stems from the Corporation's recognition of other income from winning a lawsuit as per the decision of the Hanoi Supreme People's Court, judgment No. 89/2026/HC-PT dated February 10, 2026, with a recorded value of VND 6.55 billion.

Vietnam Electronics and Informatics Joint Stock Corporation (VEIC) provides further clarification on the fluctuations in some key indicators in the consolidated financial statement for Q1/2026 compared to Q1/2025, to provide additional information for your agency, shareholders, and investors.

Best regards.
